is always interesting, but was made particularly so upon this occasion by the instruction of the deputies to invite the convention to Richmond in 1807. The body meets every three years, its company session will be held October next in Boston. There is reason to believe, from what was stated yesterday, that it is willing and anxious to come to Richmond, and has simply been vaiting for the invitation that is now extended. It has not met here for fifty years or more. The convention is the most notable religious assembly in the country; is composed of very distinguished men; sits three weeks, and transacts business of the very greatest importance. Its visit here will be an event of no small note. To-day the council will proceed with its regular business. There will be sev-

ral matters of more than passing in-erest. The bishop's address will be read and the report of the committee on arch-deacon will probably excite considerable sion. Strong opposition will to the establishment of the made to the establishment of the new office. In the morning at 11 o'clock Bishop Kinsolving, of Brazil, who arrived yes-terday, will deliver an address on his work. At night Dr. A. S. Lloyd, of New York, general secretary of the board of managers, will speak.

THE FIRST DAY.

Council Opens With Divine Service-Discussion of Schools. The first day of the council opened with divine service conducted by the bishop of the diocese, the Right Rev. Robert A. Glbson. The attendance was very large. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. L. R. Combs, of Christ Church Parish, Lancuster. The Holy Communion was then administered by the bishop, assisted by the Rev. W. M. Clark, rector of St. James.

Committees Announced.

The council was called to order shortly after noon by Bishon Gibson. The at-tendance in the church at that time was quite large, the building being about three-fourths full.

The work of organization was at once taken up and completed. The secretary according to the specified method, made out a roll and called the names of all certified to him as duly and canonically cleeted. The call ryvesled the presence of 52 clerical defigaces and 44 lay, A quorum of bottl'orders being present, the council was declared duly organized and ready for business. The bishop the appointed the Rev. Robert Strange, D. many a poorly paid Episcopal rector out of Virginia. Dr. W. E. Evans, of Monu-mental, declared the matter to be the most important the council could dis-cuss. He asked concerning the amount it most important the council council cours. He asked concerning the amount it would take to educate a girl at the Institute, and Mr. Wellford at once arose and said that from sad experience he knew that this amount would not be less than $550 a year. It was pointed out by Dr. Evans that many of the ministers are poorly and inadequately paid, and out of a salary of $700 or $900 per year could not afford so stupendous a price as $550 for the education of a girl during one year, or even $300, if a reduction to that omount were made to the benefit of the clergy.

Included All the Schools. The discussion at this point extended is scope and thereafter included all the its scope and thereafter heliaded all the Episcopal schools in the State. Dr. Evans called attention to the fact that Mr. Lee had expressed the hope that by raising the money, the school could be brought under a plan comparable with that of the Episcopal High School.

"There need be no secrets here," said the rector in effect, directing his remarks the this point. "If you are starting out.

"There need be no secrets here," said the rector in effect, directing his remarks to this point. "If you are starting out to run the institute on the pian of the Episcopal High School, you might as well not do it. We don't want it run on that plan. We can't send our boys there, because they charge more than we can pay. It will not do to say that the schools of other denominations are inferior. But the fact is, that the Episcopul schools charge more than any others. We are driven away from the schools of our own church and are forged to send our boys and girls to other schools—to the Randolph-Macon system and to the Woman's Colleke in Richmond, where there are about twenty Episcopal girls now. Think of that, will you? Twenty Episcopal girls forced to attend a Baptist school because they are barred out of our own institutions."

A motion to lay the paper on the table was made by the Rey, J. Y. Downman but was lost when it was brought out that this procedure would be clearly a discouriesy to the Board of Trustees. Mr. Joseph Bryan thereupen moved that the paper be received and printed, but not acted upon in any manner. This mo-

Special Order Called at Afternoon

Session—Those Present.

When the council reassembled for the afternoon session the special order was called—the election of deputies to the General Convention, which meets in October in Boston. After speeches by the Rev. W. M. Clark and Mr. Joseph Bryan, the council unanimously agreed to a resolution instructing the deputies to be elected to invite the convention to meet here at its session in 1907. There can be no doubt that this invitation will be accepted. According to a statement made by Mr. Bryan, who was personally aware of the conditions, the convention is anxious to come to Richmond, and has only been waiting for an invitation. The action of the conditions, the convention is anxious to come to Richmond, and has only been waiting for an invitation. The action of the council yesterday will therefore bring to the city the most distinguished religious body in the United States. Its sessions continue through about three weeks. The convention is the governing body of the entire church in America. It is composed of the House of Bishops, and the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies, which latter includes the most distinguished ministers and laymen in the denomination. The convention meets every three years.

Several nominations of clerical and by lay deputies to the convention were then made. The election resulted as follows:

Lay Deputies—Total vote cast, 91; necessary to a choice, 48; elected on the first ballot, Mr. Joseph Bryan, 82 votes; Mr. J. M. Blackford, 59 votes.

Clerical Deputies—Chosen on the first and

Mr. P. H. Mayo, 61 votes; Mr. John L. Milliams, 52 votes; Mr. L. M. Blackford, 50 votes.

Clerical Deputies—Chosen on the first ballot: Rev. W. M. Clark, 53 votes, and Rev. Pobert Strange, D. D., 55 votes; chosen on the second ballot, Rev. Angus Craw'ord, D. D., 51 votes.

Pending the election of the fourth clerical deputy and the alternates, the council adjourned for the afternoon. Upon motion of the Rev. J. J. Gravatt, of Holy Trinity, the secretary was instructed to communicate with the diocese of Southern Virginia and of West Virginia and request their co-operation in securing the convention for Richmond in 1907.

SCATTFICHING BUSINESS.

The Rev. Angus Crawford, D. D., presented the report of the committee to which was referred the proposed amendments of the constitution of the church adopted at the General Convention held in San Francisco, October, 1901. The amendments are minor in their character, and the committee recommended that they be adopted. Judge Wallace made some of gleetion, and the report of the committee, with the consent of the charman, was ladd on the table until to-day.

The regular report of the principal of the Virginia Female Institute was submitted, showing the status of the school, which was slown to be growingly successful. Regist was expressed that the funds needed had not yet been relised. The contained ald and sympathy of the council was requested.

On motion of the Rev. C. E. Ball, the council was requested.

On motion of the Rev. C. E. Ball, the council adopted the amendment to the constitution proposed last year, directing that the council shall meet on the fourth Wednesday in May, where Ascension Day falls upon the day following the third Wednesday in May, where Repular time of meeting.

Marchant, of Charlottesville, agreed with the opposition.

"I believe," he said, in effect, "that the deplorable lack of candida es for the ministry in Virginal is due to the education of our Episcopal children by others. Nobody is receiving benefit from this institute, except a few who can afford to pay the price and can, therefore, have the satisfaction of feending their girls to an Episcopal school. I cannot agree with Mr. Lee. The money will never be raised in this way. The whole plan of the school will have to be changed before it can be done. I have not subscribed one cent. But if the change meet it would to the extent of my ability render it assistance and here are others who would do the same."

The hour for adjournment having arrived, the council was a recess until 4:30 o'clock.

On behalf of the Executive Committee of the Diccesan Missionary Society, the Rev. E. L. Goodwin made an excellent report, which showed the largest contributions since the division of the diocese. The receipts from churches and individuals amounted to $1,855.21 from Sunday schools, $2,465.52. The total for the year amounted to $1,201.80. The receipts exceed those of last year by $557. of the year before by $1,573, and of three years ago by $2,120.

The report of Dr. John Moncure, archedeacon of the colored work, was similarly encouraging. Dr. Moncure reviewed in detail the work he had been called upon to do. Of the necessity of work among the negroes, he said:

"The negro, though considered very hard to reach by many of his white brethren, has been reached by others. Acknewledging for the sake of argument all that has been said against him and of which it may be said is not so much his fault, but of those which through mistaken lileas have thrust upon him, by putting him in a false position, instances have came to my attention in my work in the diocese which have convinced me that he can fulfil the conditions of christian manhood. That he must do so and demonstrate that the place in life to which it has pleased God to call him may be benefitted by his presence, is the work which the church has been that he shall be his one object to stand on the high social plane of his white brother, he shall be at the work which the church has before it. Not that place in which it shall be his one object to stand on the high social plane of his white brother, he shall be at the work hope, on the farm, or in domestic employment, doing with all his might, as unto the Lord and not unto men.
